It was a hot summer afternoon. A thirsty crow was flying in search of water. He flew over trees, houses, and fields but could not find any water to drink. At last, he saw a garden with a pot under a tree. The crow flew down and looked inside the pot. There was a little water at the bottom, but his beak could not reach it.

The crow thought hard. Suddenly, he had an idea! He saw some small stones nearby and started picking them up one by one. He dropped the stones into the pot. Slowly, the water rose up. The crow drank the water happily and flew away.

On a bright sunny morning, Aman and his family decided to go for a picnic to the nearby lake. They packed sandwiches, fruits, juice, and some games to play. Aman was very excited because he loved spending time outdoors. When they reached the lake, the birds were chirping, and the water was calm and blue.

Aman helped his mother spread the mat under a big tree. His little sister, Meera, ran around chasing butterflies. Their father set up a small music speaker and played soft music. After eating, they played badminton and threw stones into the lake to see whose stone would bounce the most.

In the evening, as the sun began to set, the sky turned orange and pink. They clicked some photos to remember the day. On their way back home, Aman said, "This was the best day ever!" The whole family smiled and agreed.
